My naturalization interview experience

My naturalization interview experience [1]

Submitted by Chief Editor on Jan 13th 2010

I had my interview today. The officer asked me simple direct questions like my DOB, when I came to USA, when I moved to this state.. then on the trips section he said "what was your purpose of your visits, because I see trips for like 3 months "i said " i visited my husband and relatives" and that's it on this section, given that i made 6 trips out, the longest is for 5.5 months after civics, he said I passed, but no decision was made because they need to review my physical residency. Is my case very bad? I am worried! total days spent out were 554(1.5yr) in my 5yr residency! how bad is that? do they take long time to respond?

ANSWER:

I see no problem with the visits - they were all less than 6 months. I think it should be ok. It is difficult to estimate how long it will take.
